“Dermody Properties specializes in industrial real estate. Based in Reno, Nevada, the employee-directed Foundation seeks to give back to the communities in which it does business through volunteer support and financial donations to non-profit causes. The Foundation's primary focus areas are family and children, education, services for seniors and the arts. The site contains contact information and a listing of some organizations that have received Foundation support.”

Also, consider a matching grant from the National Fish and Wildlife Foundation (they give to all public lands on a matching basis) matched by volunteer time for a quick, small, early project. In working with several of the small towns that want to be Gateways, consider contacting the Rural Community Assistance Corporation in Nevada, a federal economic development program.
